Blairmore Boy Slightly Wounded

In letters from Walter Howe to his parents and sisters, dated April 14, 17 and 18, he states that he had been slightly wounded. While firing some fresh trenches with sand-bags, some snipers got the line of them and fired, smashing the fore-sight of a rifle. Two or three pieces hit him, one piece penetrating his upper lip and lodging in the gum, loosening his teeth. Another piece lodged in his lower jaw, but at that of writing he had discarded the bandage and was feeling fine. He said it makes a fellow feel like getting right at them (the Germans). He was going to the trenches on the 10th. He wished to be remembered to all old friends. He is now in the machine-gun section of the 10th Batt., 2nd Brigade.

Hard Hit by War Tax

The war tax has struck the druggist harder than any other class of business, and it is not to be wondered at that they are strongly objecting to the tax. At first it was thought that the risk-taking medicine manufacturer would pay the tax, but not so. That very individual is not taxed at all, for the tax is only collected when the drug sells the patient's medicine. Thus the war tax is either paid by the purchaser who the druggist and he, both none neither can afford to pay it. The imposition of the tax as it stands is wrong. The tax should be levied on the manufacturer who is quite able to pay it.

Blairmore Red Cross

NOTICE: A last Cross has will be held Wednesday afternoon next, May 12th, from 3 to 5.30 o'clock, in the Church Club rooms. Come and bring your friends.

A goodly amount of work was accomplished at the evening meeting Tuesday the 4th inst. Besides the sale the workers turned out about as usual; but there are still many who have not as yet enlisted the ranks of workers.

If there are any who contemplate giving a contribution towards the Red Cross funds, now is the time. The treasury is absolutely empty and the demand, especially for hospital supplies, is more urgent than ever.

Terrible Effects of Poisonous Gases Upon Victims

London, April 30.—A Canadian now under treatment at the base arrived eight hours after he had been struck and overcome by the fumes liberated by the Germans. He was still unconscious, but soon after being installed in the hospital revived under treatment. He was killed and for a time dumb. His blindness is only apparently temporary, purely functional and occasioned by shock, but other symptoms, the direct result of gas, are very remarkable. His tongue is swollen to nearly double its normal size, blocked with thick patches, and badly ulcerated underneath. The membrane of the mouth and throat is excessively inflamed, the lungs attacked, and very severe bronchitis has set in. His pulse is no more than a faint flutter, his temperature high and respiration labored and difficult.

When after an hour or two in the hospital he came to sufficiently to be able to say something of his experiences, he said that he was involved only in the extreme edge of the gas cloud. Of a sudden he found a greenish yellow vapor enveloping him. A couple of inhalations completely incapacitated him; his throat became constricted and the earth seemed to be spinning around him like a top. He was violently sick, he knew gave way and he rolled over on his back, three parts unconscious. He just managed to crawl feebly out the camp police zone. He remembered no more until he woke in the hospital. When he was undressed it was found that his arms and legs had turned a mottled blue, or rather violet. This was due to inhalation of the fumes, preventing proper oxidation of the blood.

He—girls are queer creatures; they marry the first fool who asks them, as a rule. I suppose you would do the same, wouldn't you? She—Suppose you ask me, and find out.

The furniture and fittings of the Maple Leaf hotel were disposed of by public auction on Tuesday and fetched high prices. Gus Neddig, of Lethbridge, was the auctioneer.

Major and Mrs. Hay, of the Salvation Army, Calgary, were in camp on Wednesday night and held a meeting in the Methodist church, which was fairly well attended.

Some of the regular contributions to the government safe were up again this week, before W. J. McEwen, J. F., of Frank, and were the usual amount and costs and let up to finish their year.

A number of the boys now in training at Pincher Creek, were up last week end to visit friends. This will probably be their last visit before proceeding to Calgary or the front.

Miss Hoyes, who has been a member of the local teaching staff for some time, has resigned her connection with the local institution. Miss Hoyes takes the best wishes of the Bellevue children with her and it is thought that her place will be hard to fill.

RHEUMATISM QUICKLY CURED.

The Way to Socialism

Time: "Tipperary."

Written by Ellis O. Jones in the Appeal to Reason.

It's to big Toronto came a workman one day;
He wanted long to get a job to keep the wolf away.
He heard a fellow on the corner talking to a crowd,
Then this worker got excited and he shouted right out loud:

It's a long way to Socialism,
It's a long way to go.
It's a long way to Socialism,
And the bestest thing you know.
Good-bye, Competition,
Good-bye, things unfair,
It's a long, long way to Socialism,
But my heart's right there.

The speaker kept on telling how the present system works,
Oh how it made the workman and then rewards the shirks,
Oh interest, rent and profit and all of the evil plan,
Then this worker jumped upon a box and shouted like a man:

It's the wrong way to Capitalism,
It's the wrong way to go.
It's the wrong way to Capitalism,
It's the poorest way you know.
Good-bye, Adulteration,
Child labor as well,
It's the wrong, wrong way to Capitalism,
Much worse than hell.

This worker took to study, reading everything he found.
He saw that every socialist argument was sound,
And thus it was that he became more zealous every day,
And when he saw a workman, he'd speak right up and say:

It's a short way to Socialism,
It's a short way to go.
It's a short way to Socialism,
But the only way you know.
If the workers get together
And use their brains right,
It's a short, short way to Socialism
And Justice and Right.

W. J. BARRETT, Proprietor.

Blairmore, Alta., Fri., May 7, 1915

The editor has been somewhat embarrassed this week. He received a second letter from an Ontario diviner soliciting his aid in introducing him to a suitable partner for life. He felt at first disposed to turn down the appeal with a ruthless contempt, but his foreman reminded him that only clergymen were indifferently mailed, while others were subjected in their pastoral sphere to so many misadventures upon their own personal nature that the Ontario diviner deserved sympathy. The arguments seemed good, so the editor drew up a list of candidates whose virtues have been tabulated on the principle of points, of which the following is a summary:

Miss P. ....	90
Miss V. ....	91
Miss G. (Blairmore) ..	94
Miss F. ....	94
Miss M. (Frank) ..	97
Miss M. (Blairmore) ..	82
Miss M. (Frank) ..	82
Miss N. (Frank) ..	80
Miss M. (Blairmore) ..	80
Miss M. (Blairmore) ..	78
Miss H. (Blairmore) ..	29

The qualifications of the lady may include: industry, equality of disposition and average good looks, and be able to draw with a refined sense of color and have a preference for outdoor exercises. The editor is of opinion that Blairmore or Frank have a sporting chance of winning the prize. He has written to Ontario, asking in the event of being successful, when the goods would require to be shipped.

Mail Order House Failure

Many of our farmers, especially in the more progressive communities in the west, are beginning to realize that their true interests are best served when they support their own country store. They have learned to resist the temptation of mail order catalogues and to give their cash business instead to their own local stores. Not only their own experiences, but more especially the experience of brother farmers in the United States, has taught them that the inevitable outcome of sending their cash orders to mail order houses is the degeneration of their own country store, and the decrease in value of their own farm property.

Prior to the fact that our farmers are beginning to think along these lines is due the recent failure of the firm of Christie-Gard Company, Limited, Winnipeg, a mail order house that kept like a flame into prominence for a few brief months. We understand that 222 creditors attended the general meeting held some little while back, and even this did not represent the total number of creditors. It appears that it is the intention of the bankrupt creditors, who were in no fair way to lose large sums of money over the venture, to continue the business until their accounts are paid. The spring catalogue, which has been mailed out to a very large extent, is expected to bring in business that will help to liquidate their losses.

If farmers are beginning to learn the lesson that they must support their country store in order to advance their own best interests, it is of very great importance that retail merchants should take immediate steps to offer the public a more efficient service than the best they have hitherto offered. If the country merchant is supported by his neighbor's cash business, as well as his credit business, there is no reason why he should not produce a service equal to the best that any mail order house can offer, both as regards the price and quality of his goods.

May Rod and Gun

Rod and Gun for May, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., is out with an interesting list of contents. Edward T. Martin contributes an article "Have the Pigeons Returned" dealing with the possible recurrence of the passenger pigeon, which has been pronounced extinct by as great an authority as Prof. Hornaday of New York. "A Ram of the Stormy Petrel" is a Western story of a ram whom the narrator regarded as a creature of the evil one. How it propensely for vanishing into this air was finally explained and the ram secured is most entertainingly related by Ray Giddings. Other stories and the regular departments combine to make an exceptionally interesting number of this well known sportsman's magazine.

Summer School

For Teachers

The policy of the Department of Education regarding the development of instruction in the practical arts and in science and agriculture is to provide financial aid to the local school boards to assist them in providing the necessary equipment and facilities. (b) financial aid to the teachers who secure the necessary qualifications and carry on the work in their schools in a satisfactory manner, and (c) provision of opportunities whereby the teachers of the Province may have an equal chance to attend their training to a great extent to enable them to do the additional work successfully while at the same time conserving the best standards for the work of the school as a whole.

During the last two summers the Summer School for Teachers held under the direction of the Department of Education at the University of Alberta, has provided this opportunity. In 1913, eighty teachers took advantage of the course offered. In 1914, one hundred and fifty-five teachers attended. The same year a special series of courses was organized for the school inspectors to enable them to co-operate with the teachers in the field in the development of the work.

The announcement giving full particulars regarding the Summer School for 1915 is now being sent to all teachers in the Province. A course has been received at this office today. It is evident from the announcement that the Department of Education is finding the Summer School an effective instrument for the stimulation and supplementary training of the teachers. The service of very many specialists has been covered for instruction purposes. Over one hundred and fifty-five teachers have applied already for admission.

This year the organization of the course of instruction has been elaborated so as to be in harmony with the regulations regarding instruction in the special subjects as indicated in Technical Education Bulletin No. 1, issued last November. A series of courses, in each case involving two summer sessions, is being offered to a special elementary certificate in—

- (a) Science—Agriculture, Gardening and Nature Study.
- (b) Household Arts—Household Science, Management and Art.
- (c) Art—Art Methods, Design, Drawing and Painting.
- (d) Manual Training—Paper and Cardboard Work, Textile and Bookbinding Work, Clay Modelling and Penmanship.
- (e) Woodwork—Shop Work, Design and Mechanical Drawing.
- (f) Physical Training—Strathcona Drill, Organized Play, Musical Games and Folk Dances.

This year, for the first time, a special series of courses will be offered for those teachers who are responsible for teaching Science and Agriculture in the high schools. While a number of those responsible for such instruction are science specialists, the great majority in the towns and villages have not been trained in either Science or Agriculture in their college course. Those teachers find themselves practically at a disadvantage in approaching these subjects especially from the practical side.

The courses offered involve (a) a double course in Agriculture for one summer for those who are science specialists, (b) a group of courses involving two summers' work for those who are not science specialists. The first summer will be devoted to Agriculture and Gardening, Methods in Zoology and Methods in Botany; the second summer to Agriculture, including experimental and demonstration plotwork, Methods in Physics and Methods in Chemistry.

This year a seminar, under the chairmanship of the Director of the Summer school, will be organized for the high school teachers and agricultural instructors for the careful consideration of the general problem of instruction in science and agriculture in secondary schools.

The Poor Fly

The poor fly! He does not seem to have a friend on earth, for everybody wants to swat him, or set sticky traps for his little feet. The fly is the greatest scavenger, and should be treated with love and kindness. Perhaps he will then keep his nose out of the butter. We should train and educate the fly to be polite and discreet. We should clothe his little naked feet in antiseptic slippers, and require him to take out the garbage for peddling purposes. We should feed him on sugar, butter and balneol, so that he will not have to go out into the stinking backyards and rustle his living in garbage cans. We should also place temptation beyond his reach by destroying all filth. By doing this it is probable that in the course of a few generations, we can make the fly like unto a little bird that will sing and be happy and as welcome in every home. God made the fly and there are none of them in hell as far as we could learn in our travels. He kind to the little fellow, and they may yet reform.—R. T. Lowry.

Private Ernst Willard, of Coleman, is quoted in a recent Country Life.

All boasting of his bridge-building ability passed as naught when the structure collapsed beneath the lady's weight, and he landed head first to accompany her hurriedly to her home. Experience is after all the best teacher!

Every good citizen of this town should take a special local pride in all that pertains to home. The schools, the churches, the amusements, the business, the pleasure, the celebrations, in fact everything should be looked on by our own people as just as good as can be gotten up elsewhere. The town that says "we can" will always succeed.

What might have been a very serious accident occurred on Sunday afternoon about two miles west of McInnis Lumber Co. camp, on the main highway. The brakes were applied, but in order to avoid a crash the car was turned out towards the edge of the embankment where it became overbalanced and flatted to ride. Fortunately the machine brought up against the one only stump about twenty feet down the bank, where it stood on its beam ends, otherwise the car with its four occupants would have been precipitated to the base, about two hundred feet almost directly below.

The escape was a miracle, and the occupants of the vehicle received no hearing they will not soon forget. The car was afterwards raised to the road and sped off under its own power to Michel.

On Tuesday afternoon, there was a woman's parade through the city—silk in carriages, and fustian on foot. The 'mere man' who saw his parading prerogative wrested from him for the first time in the history of the town, went about his work as usual, or stood along the sidewalk viewing the innovation with stolid indifference."
